

SNOW AND COLD INCOMING

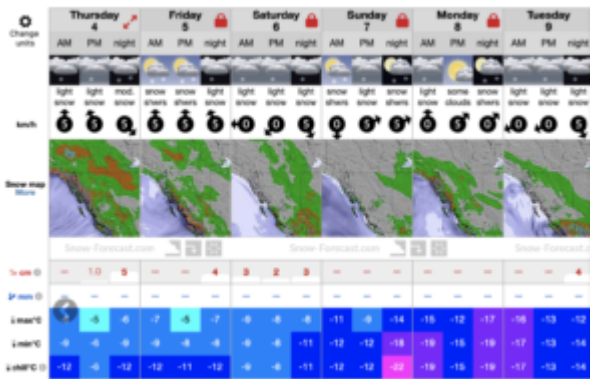

Let's get straight to the good news; there's snow in the forecast! Approx 22cm of the good stuff is due before Tuesday with the majority of it coming on the weekend. While our snowpack is still in early-season conditions, what we have got is playing pretty nice; the facts are that there's still fresh out there if you hunt for it. The alpine remains considerable for avalanche danger and the temps are turning cooler. Grooming is in full effect and the trails are in good shape. Keep reading for more info:

SNOW AND WEATHER

There's approximately 22cms of snow in the forecast and the long term looks promising too. Temps are getting in to the negative mid teens by the weekend so it might be good to grab an extra layer.

KHMR reported 1cms in the past week and 223cm YTD.
