

IT'S DEEP!

We're stoked to say it's deep out there and man does it feel good to hold it wide open. Full-pin therapy is a thing and we've had 50-60 cms of fresh pow (at least) in the past week and a full reset over the entire mountain range. We're finally going to claim that we're out of the early-season like conditions. If you're coming here this weekend, dress warm because it's going to be cold, but along with the temps are the sweet blue skies that can light the way to open bowls. If you ever wanted a recipe for deep cold smoke, this weekend is your time. Avalanche conditions are rated as Moderate for the weekend days. -Keep reading to find out more.

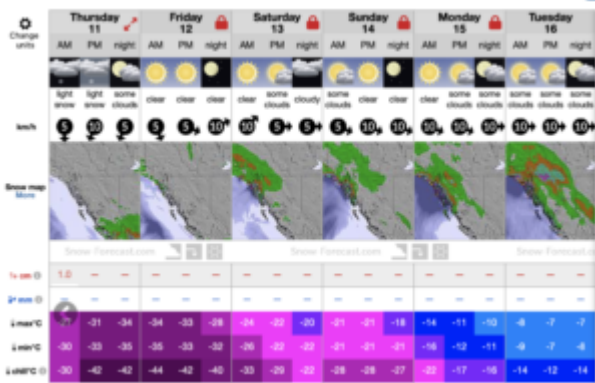

Snow & Weather

SNOW AND WEATHER

It's deep out there and it's cold. We've got a decent base now and the anxiety we've had over avoiding all shrubs and stumps is starting to disappear. The joys of the 'when in doubt - throttle out' mentality were much needed.

KHMR reported 49cms in the past 7 days but the mountains in our sled zones feel like they got more. There's not much for more snow in the forecast but there's a lot of sun instead.

Fact: it's going to be cold this weekend. So dress warm. The good news is that it's not going to last that long. By Sunday it's bearable again.
